MISCELLANY.

A Friendly Game of Poker.

BY SOL SMITH.

On the evening of our second day out from New Orleans, I found myself seated at a card table, with three of my fellow passengers, playing at the interesting game of "Poker." It was a very comfortable amusement then, (1845) and it was not unusual to see half a dozen tables occupied at the same time in the gentlemen's cabin of a Mississippi boat. I had sat down to the game for amusement, but on rising, at 10 o'clock, I found my amusement had cost me about sixty dollars! "This won't do at all," said I, shaking my head. "Card playing is a very serious business," replied one of the players, who happened to be an old acquaintance of mine from Montgomery, Alabama, where he had been a jailor for several years, and where he was considered a very respectable citizen. "You must not give it up so," he continued, following me out on the guard; "to-morrow you'll get even." I entered into conversation with my old acquaintance, whose name was Hubbard, or Hubbard—I don't remember which—we'll call him Hubbard—and he advised me by all means to try another sitting on the morrow. I suggested to him that a slight suspicion had crossed my mind that some of our party might be blacklegs—in other words, gamblers. He answered that the suspicion had not struck him, and he said that he was of the opinion that all had been fair. Before leaving me, my quondam friend told me that he had become a sporting man—he felt it his duty to inform me of it—but he assured me, upon his honor, that he would not see me wronged. Of course I believed him, and it was agreed that we should meet again.

Next morning, as soon as the breakfast things had been cleared away, I found Hubbard and a friend of his, waiting for me at one of the card tables, and I took my seat with the hope of getting even—a hope that had led many a man to irretrievable ruin. I felt quite confident of winning back my losses over night, and my players gave me every encouragement that I should be successful. At it we went, playing with varying luck for about two hours. At about 11 o'clock, Hubbard's friend left us for a few minutes, to "get a drink," and the jailor and myself were left playing single handed. When the third hand left, we were using the small cards as they were called—that is, sizes and under—but Hubbard immediately proposed to get even, and he asked me to play with the large cards—ones and over—which I agreed to as a matter of course. One thing I here observed—my friend, the jailor, dealt the cards without shuffling. This made me resolve to watch him closely. Taking up my cards, I was agreeably surprised to find that I had an excellent hand. "Now," thinks I to myself, "now is the time, if ever, to get even with my adversary; he ought to have a decent hand, I shall do well enough."

[The reader who does not understand the game of "bluff" or "poker," as it is generally called—may as well leave off here.]

I commenced the game by bragging a dollar—my adversary went the dollar, and five better—I went that and ten—he immediately put up the ten, and laid down a twenty, keeping his pocket book out, as much as to say, "I am ready to go any amount you choose to bet." After a moment's reflection, (all acting!) I go that and fifty. "All right," replied the jailor, "there it is—I go that and a hundred." I here looked up my cards, and found, in fact, not a very good hand, and I began to feel that I should go the hundred. "Take back your last bet," I urged; "it is too much for either of us to lose; I begin to think I have been rash; take it back, and let us show our hands for the money already down." "No," said Hubbard—"if you mean sporting, put up the hundred, or back out, and give me the money." "Can't do that," I replied; "I don't think it would be sporting to back out, and give the hundred—and as my pocket book's out, and my hand's in, there's another C." This new bet seemed to please my friend Hubbard mightily. He answered it without a moment's pause, and went two hundred more. I now requested my opponent to permit me to show my cards to some of the bystanders, who were crowding round the table, and I was greatly amused to find that the fun—all considering me most undoubtedly "picked up." Hubbard would not agree that I should show my hand to, or take advice from any one. "Play your own cards," said he, reaching over, and gently compelling me to lay my cards on the table before me. "Then," said I, "you tell me if three aces and two other cards can be beat." "Oh, yes," he replied, with satisfaction, and he said he had a "strong" hand. "Be certain, but not easy." "Not easy, I think myself," replied I—therefore inasmuch as I think you are trying to bluff me off, I go the two hundred. "You do!" "Yes I do—there's the money." "Anything better?" inquired my adversary, insinuatingly, and leaning over to make use of the spit box again—all the time keeping his eyes fixed upon me, and his countenance. "Why—yes," I answered—"since you have got me excited, I'll go something better—I go two hundred better than you." Looking me steadily in the face, he said—"Well, you're a bold fellow, any how, for a novice—it takes all I've got, by holy, but I go it—and if you'll let me bet on a credit, I shall like to go back on you." (Oh, back!) I gave my confident answer, and he said he would bet on a credit. At this stage of the game, the third hand returned, and seeing at a glance how matters stood, requested to look at Hubbard's cards. "No sir!" interposed I—"you must play your own hand!" at the same time motioning my opponent to lay down his cards, as I laid down mine. The carpet began to suffer about the time I said this—there was a groan, and the excitement among the passengers was great, and my ears received many a whisper that I was "licked." Hubbard took a long and earnest look on my eyes, and said slowly, but confidently, "I go it—and call you." "I suppose I'm beat," said I—(hypocrite that I was!) I didn't suppose anything of the kind—but turn over your papers, and let me see what you've got. "Well, there's another C!" a pretty good hand, you may remark, Hubbard—"three aces." "What else have you?" "What else? Why here's a Queen!" "And what else?" asked every body. "Another Ace!" "Four Aces!" "I looked over the table, and discovered the face of my lately elected friend had lost

How Subscriptions may be paid.

The authority heretofore given to postmasters to send money free of postage to publishers of newspapers in payment of subscriptions being withdrawn, the following regulations are substituted:

Money may be left with the postmaster, in no instance exceeding ten dollars, for the purpose of being paid to distant publishers, if said publishers shall so desire, for any newspaper or pamphlet deliverable from his office. The postmaster may retain one per cent. and give his receipt for the balance. He is immediately to report the payment, with the names of the parties, to the postmaster, through whom and amount is to be paid to the publisher, and to charge himself upon his general account with the United States, with the amount received, deducting one per cent. under the head of "money received for subscriptions," stating the name of the payer, the number of copies, the office, where payable, amount, and time when received, and shall make a full and faithful return to the general post office of all such cases at the end of each quarter. When presented, the postmaster at the office where payable, is to pay the amount in full, receipt, deducting one per cent., which receipt, after being endorsed by the publisher, he will forward as his voucher of payment. He will enter said amount to his credit on his general account, and shall be held responsible for the head of "money paid for subscriptions," giving the particulars above stated, and render to the General Post Office a full and faithful account of the same at the end of each month.
